Natural History.

MOUNT VESUVIUS.

The fluid lake that works below, Bitumen, sulphur, salt and iron scum, Heaves up its boiling tide. The lab'ring mount Is torn with agonizing throes. At once, Forth from its sides disparted, blazing pours, A mighty river; burning in prone waves, That glimmer thro' the night, to yonder plain Divided there, a hundred torrent streams, Each ploughing up its bed, roll dreadful on, Resistless. Villages, and woods, and rocks, Fall flat before their sweep. The region round fruit store.

Maturing into nectar; now despoiled end

Lies buried under fire, a glowing sea.

every one who reads a description of it.

Mount Vesuvius is situated in an eastern direction from Naples, and distant about seven miles. It rises, insulated, upon a vast and well cultivated plain, presenting two summits on the same base, in which particular it resembles Blount Parnassus. One of these, La Somma, is generally agreed to have been the Vesuvius of Strabo and the ancients; the other, having the greatest elevation, is the mouth of the Volcano, which aimost constantly emits smoke. Its height above the level of the sea, is 3,900 feet, and it may be ascended by three different routes, which are all very steep and difficult, from the conical form of the mountain, and the loose ashes which slide from under the feet: still, from the base to the summit, the distance is not more than three Italian miles. The circumference of the platform on the top, is 5,024 feet, or nearly a mile. There may be seen Portici, Capæa, Ischia, Pausilippo, and the whole coast of the Gulph of Naples, bor-

On approaching the mountain, its aspect does not convey any impression of terror, nor is it gloomy, being cultivated for more than two thirds of its height, and having its brown top alone bar. ren. There, all verdure ceases; yet, when it appears covered with clouds, which sometimes encompasses its middle only, this circumstance rather adds to, than detracts from the magnih cence of the spectacle. Upon the lavas which ed. the Volcano long ago ejected, and which like great furrows extend into the plain and to the sea, are built houses, villages and towns. Gardens, vineyards and cultivated fields surround them; but a sentiment of sorrow, blended with apprehensions about the future, arises on the recollection that, beneath a soil so fruitful, so smiling, lie edifices, gardens, and whole towns swalscience. Even at this day, in speaking of Vesu- air. vius, the remembrance of his untimely death, excites a melancholy regret. All the coast to the east of the galph of Naples, was, on the above occasion, ravaged and destroyed, presenting nothing but a long succession of ejected matters from Herculaneum to Stabia. The destruction did not extend to the western part, but stopped

Thirty eight eruptions of Visuvius are recorded in history up to the year 1806. That of 1779 has been described by Sir William Hamilton as among the most remarkable from its extraordinary and terrific appearance. During the whole of July the mountain was in a state of considerable fermentation, subterraneous explosions and rumbling noises being heard, and quantities of smoke thrown with great violence, sometimes with red hot stones, scorice and ashes. On the 5th of August the volcano was greatly agitated a white sulpurous smoke, apparently four times the size and height of the Volcano itself, issuing from the crater, at the same time the vast quantities of stones, &c. were thrown up to the supposed height of 2000 feet. The liquid lava havg cleared the rim of the crater, flowed down the sides of the mountain to the distance of four miles The air was darkened, by showers of reddish ashes, blended with long filaments of a Scoretary. vitrified matter resembling glass.

by patches of the darkest hue. The lava was partly directed by the wind towards. Ontainano, on which so thick a shower of ashes, blended with vast pieces of scoriæ fell, that had it been of longer continuance, that town would have shared the fate of Pompeii. It took fire in several places and had there been much wind, the inhabitants would have been burned in their houses, it being impossible for them to stir out. To add to the horror of the scene, incessant volcanic lightning darted through the black cloud that surrounder them, while the sulphurious smell and heat would scarcely allow them to draw their breath. In

The eruption of 1794 is accurately described by the above writer; but has not an equal degree of interest with the one cited above. We subjoin a few particulars, among which is a circumstance well deserving notice, as it leads to an estimate of the degree of heat in volcanoes. Sir William says that although the town of Torre del Greco was instantly surrounded with red hot lava the inhabitants saved themselves by coming Where myrtle walks and groves of golden out of the tops of their houses on the following day. It is evident, observes Mr. Kırvan, that if Rose fair; where harvest waved in all its pride this lava had been hot enough to melt even the And where the vineyard spread its purple most fusible stones, these persons must have been suffocated.

This eruption happened on the 15th of June, Of herb, leaf, fruit and flower, from end to at 10 oclock at night, and was announced by a shock of an earthquake, which was distinctly felt at Naples. > preceding Sabbath the sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered in the church where the ses sions of the Directors were held; and public social worship was attended on each evening of the meeting, and also on Monday morning. A pleasing degree of harmony prevailed in all the deliberations of the Board; and a just sense of the great importance of the object which had called them together from remote distances, appeared universally felt. Although, in planting but one sacred seat of science and religion in a district of country hundreds of miles in extent, the particular local wishes of few can be or are likely to be fully grat. fied, yet it was pleasing to learn that in many pla ces this subject had caught the public attention, and that towns, churches, and bene rolent indienduals, were taking measures to lay before the Board suc inducements to bring this intended nursery of the church near them as are highly creditable to their liberality and their sense of the connexion of such institutions with the best interests of social virtue, knowledge, and happiness.

With such aid as the Western country shall receive from the General Assembly and its various branches, there is little doubt that this intended Seminary may be at no distant period adequately endowed; and these incipient measures, as well as the whole concern, should be matter of lively interest to all who wish well to the cause and kingdom of the glorious Redeemer.

The Board of Directors of the Western Theolorical Seminary, beg leave to address you on the abject of that interesting and highly important business which has been intrusted to them.

Agreeably to the appointment of the last General Assembly, they convened in this place on the 15th inst. and have attended as far as was practicable to the duties assigned them, and are now about to adjourn to meet in Wheeling, (Va)on the 3d

Thursday of April next. The present meeting has afforded them the opportunity of conferring with the board of commissioners appointed by the assembly on the subject of the ocation of the contemplated Seminary; and who have also adjourned to meet in Washington, (Pa) on the 23d of Nov. next, when they are expected to act upon the proposals which shall be offered to them from different places. THE TREE OF LIBERTY-BY BURNS. This poem prevented the Author from promotion to the Excise.]

I watna (1) what's the name o't;— Around it a' the patriots dance; Weel (2) Europe kens (3) the fame o't: It stands where (4) ance the Bastile stood A prison built by kings, man, Where superstition's hellish brood Kept France in leading strings, man.

HEARD ye o' the tree o' France?

Upon this tree there grows sic (5) fruit, Its virtues a' can tell, man; It raises man aboon (6) the brute, And bids him ken himsel', man. Gif (7) ance the Peasant taste a bit, He's greater than a lord, man; And wi' the Beggar shares a mite

Of a' he can afford, man.

It to perdition sends, man.

Its fruit is worth all Asia's wealth;-To sweeten life 'twas sent, man. To gie (8) man's face the blush o' health; To gie his heart content, man; It clears the e'en, (9) it cheers the heart, Makes high and low guid (10) friends, man; But he that acts the tyrant's part,

My blessings are attend the chiel, (11) That pitied Gallies slaves, man, And stele a twig, spite o' the de'il, Frae (12) yout the western wave, man. Fair virtue water'd it wi' care, And now she sees wi' pride, man How weel it buds and blossoms there, Its branches spreading wide, man.

But wicked tyrants hate to see The work of virtue thrive man; The courtly vermin bann'd (13) the tree, And grat (14) to see it thrive, man. King Loui' thought to cut it down, While it was yet but sma' man; Its guardian genius crack'd his crown, Took off his head and a', man!

A wicked crew syne (15) on a time Did swear a solemn aith, (16) man, That it should ne'er bloom in its prime, I wot they pledged their faith, man, Awa they gaid (17) wi' great parade, Like beagles hunting game, man. But soon grew weary o' the trade,

For Freedom, standing by her tree, Her son's did loudly ca', man, She sung a sang (19) o' liberty, Which rous'd them ane (20) and a', man. By her inspired, the new born race oon flash'd the avenging steel, man. The hirelings ran-their foes gied (21) chase, And bang'd the despots weel, man.

And wish'd they'd staid at hame, (18) man.

Let Britain boast her hardy oak, Her poplar, and her pine, man, Auld (22) Scotland still can crack her joke, And owre (23) her neighbours shine, man. But seek the forest round and round, And soon 'twill be agreed, man, That sic a tree cannot be found, Tween London and the Tweed, man.

Without this tree, alake! this life, Is but a vale of woe, man; A scene o' sorrow mixt wi' strife; Nae (24) real joys we know, man. We labour soon, we labour late, To feed the titled knave, man; And a' the comfort we're to get

Is that ayont the grave, man.

Wi' plenty o' sic trees, I trow, The warld (25) wad live in peace, man, The swords wad help to mak' a plough, The din o' war wad cease, man. Like brethren in a common cause, We'd on each other smile, man; And equal rights, and equal laws, Wad gladden every isle, man.

Wae(26) worth the loon, wha wad na eat Sic halesome (27) dainty cheer, man; I'd gie the shoon (28) frae aff my feet To taste sic fruit, I swear, man. Syne let us pray, auld England may Soon plant this far famed tree, man; Then blythe we'll sing, and bless the day Which gave us liberty, man.

VARIETY.

A lady wrote on a pane of glass in a window-"The power of love shall never warm my heart,
"Tho' he assaled me with his fiercest dart."

A gentleman wrote underneath-"The lady has her resolution spoke,
"Yet writes on glass, in hopes it may be broke."

PLEASURE-Says Dr. Johnson, is seldom found where it is sought. Our brightest blazes of gladness are commonly kindled by unexpected sparks. The flowers which scatter their odours, from time to time, in the paths of life, grow up without culture, from seeds scattered And strong gentle horses, and is now ready to accomby chance.

Bigotry murders religion to frighten fools with her ghost.

LA MOTT'S COUGH DROPS.

Important Medicine for Coughs and Cousumptions.

THIS Elixir is not offered to the public as infallible, and a rival to all others, but as possess ng virtues peculiarly adapted to the present prevailing disorders of the breast and lungs, leading to consumption. A timely use of these drops may be considered a certain cure in most cases of

Common Colds, Coughs, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Pain in the Side, Difficulty of Breathing, Want of Sleep

arising from debility; and in Spasmodic Asthma it is singularly efficacious. A particular attention to the directions accompanying e ch bottle is neces-1825.

Mr. A Crosby-I am pleased with this opportunity of relating a few facts, which may serve in commendation of your excellent Cough Drops. For ten years I was afflicted with a pulmonary complaint; my cough was severe my appetite weak and my strength failing. I used many popular medicines, but only found temporary relief, until by a continued use of your valuable drops, I have been blessed with such perfect health as to render further means unnecessary.
